The Atlantic Monthly, for February, with the great variety of work he exhibits, will testify. In our opinion it is not a difficult matter, however, to become a skillful operator on the Domestic for it is claimed by those who tried it to be the castest machine to operate, runs the lightest, has the least machinery and does the largest range of work of any machine now in the market.

[Written for the Perryaburg Journal.] ONE NOTE WRONG. BY LILY LARKSTUR.

The sunshine gleams on the distant hills,
Tipping their peaks like a golden crown;
A sense of peace every bosom fills,
White watching the crimson sun go down. The trees look down, with their branches wide On green fields sprinkled with blussoms bright;

And the breezes blow, and the brooklets glide
And the cricket sings in the soft twilight. Fair evening comes with her starry train Spread out to wandering eyes below, And all night long, through our joy or pain, They are shining on with their timid glow. And the morning comes like the king's high

And the earth is bright, and the flowers are And the aunlight falls where the moonlight And the birds sing sweet as the song But my heart in unrest greets the morning But my near hight,
And a misty cloud dims my laughing eyes
And my tired heart has grown weary quite
In watching for stars that never rise.

From the earliest bad of the tasseled larch, To the latest sigh of the winter's song. In the tune that bests to my life's dull march There is one note wrong, there is one not wrong ! PERRYSBURO, February, 1871.

New York, August 15th, 1898.

Allow me to call year attention to my PREPARATION OF COMPOUND EXTRACT BUCHU. The component parts are, BUCHU. LONG LEAR, CUBERS, JUNIPER BERRIES.

Modes of Parparation.—Buchu, in vacuo, Juniper Herries, by distillation, to form a fine gin. Cubebs extracted by displacement with spirits, obtained from Juniper Berries; very little august is used, and a small proportion of spirit. It is more palatable than any now in use.

Buchu as prepared by Druggista, is of a dark color. It is a plant that emite its fragrance; the action of a flame destroys this (its active principle) leaving a dark and gluthous decoution. Mine is the color of ingredients, The Buchu in my preparation predominates; the smallest quantity of the other ingredients are added, so prevent fermentation; upon inspection it will be found not to be a Tincture, as made in Pharmacopean, nor is it a Syrup—and therefore can be used in cares where fever or inflammation exists. In this, you have the knowledge of the ingredients and the mode of preparation.
